Re Bureau letter to Baltimore, 7/5/68.

Enclosed herewith is fingerprint card in the name of PHILIP FRANCIS BERRIGAN containing fingerprints taken by the Baltimore County Police Bureau on 5/17/68.

IDENTIFICATION DIVISION)

The Identification Division previously advised that prints submitted by the United States Marshal, Baltimore, for were not susceptible for accurate classification. In view of this, the fingerprint card for taken by the Baltimore County Police Bureau was obtained and furnished to the Identification Division on 6/25/68.

Recontact with the Baltimore County Police Bureau disclosed that the only remaining fingerprint card available is that which is enclosed. It is possible that the Baltimore County Police Bureau mistakenly inserted the wrong first name of EERRIGAN upon printing the two brothers on 5/17/68.

It is requested that Baltimore be advised as to whether or not the enclosed card reflects the fingerprints of rather than PHILIP BERRIGAN so that the Baltimore County Police Bureau can be advised accordingly.

RE: DARST

On August 13, 1968, Assistant United States Attorney ROGER EDGAR of St. Louis, Missouri, advised that the proceedings against JAMES MC GINNIS DARST were dismissed by the Government. He further advised that the dismissal was occasioned by a confession of error by the Solicitor General of the United States, in a case involving identical facts, (re-classified 1A and declared delinquent after relinquishing draft card, previously had been classified 4D).

DARST had been indicted by a Federal Grand Jury at St. Louis, Missouri, on June 4, 1968, for violation of Title 50, app., United States Code, Section 462, for failure to report for induction on April 10, 1968.

Re Baltimore teletype to Bureau, 9/26/68, captioned "Baltimore Defense Committee; IS-C", which furnished identities of individuals invited to speak at planned demonstrations in Baltimore, Maryland, during the week of 10/6/68 in support of the defendants. The trial in this case begins in USDC, Baltimore, Maryland on 10/7/68.

Enclosed for information of the Selective Service Desk are copies of all known literature distributed to date by the Baltimore Defense Committee (BDC). Also enclosed is a xerox copy of articles appearing in The Catholic Review, 9/27/68.

In a news conference on 9/25/68 at the Peace Action Center, GRENVILLE WHITMAN informed the press that BDC hoped to attract 1 to 5,000 participants from all over the country. Included in this number, they hoped to get students from local high schools and colleges Arrangements are being made according to WHITMAN at the new conference for people coming out of town to stay in homes of citizen of Baltimore or camp out at Wyman Park located at 29th and Charles Streets. This is in close proximity to Johns Hopkins University. Some students at Johns Hopkins are members of SDS. WHITMAN indicated that they are forming Medical Committees and when queried by newsmen as to their purpose, he replied that "in case they are needed". He also stated "We'll be interested in seeing the police perform since they are under the Governor's control". It is noted that Governor SPIRO T. AGNET of the yland is the Vice Presidential candidate for the Republican Party.

Attached literature includes a schedule of events beginning 10/6/68 which includes a march at Noon on 10/8/68 where a coffin will be presented to Selective Service personnel.

BDC has plans for picketing the U.S. Post Office and Court House at Lexington and Calvert Streets where the defendants trial will take place on 10/7/68.

In connection with this demonstration, U.S. Attorney STEPHEN H. SACHS, Baltimore, Maryland, has noted that in the event of a demonstration or pickets outside the Federal court house during the trial of the nine defendants that the individuals involved could possibly be in violation of Title 18, V.S. Code, Section 1507, which prohibits picketing or parading near a building where a trial is in progress or about to begin. He stated that he is undecided at this time about prosecution of violators of this Statute.

In the event of a demonstration outside the Federal court house, Bureau agents will be present as observers. FBI agents will take no part in policing demonstrations or in riot control. For information of the Bureau, all literature and information concerning this planned demonstration has been made available to the Baltimore City PD. Other appropriate local and federal agencies have been advised. Should violations of federal statute, over which the Bureau has primary jurisdiction, take place, immediate investigation will be instituted in accordance with existing instructions.

Bures will be kept advised by appropriate communication of developmen as they occur.

Re Baltimore airtel 9/27/68.

Since the planned activities on the part of the Baltimore Defense Committee indicate a strong possibility of many additional Selective Service violations, your office should closely follow the activities of individuals demonstrating for this organization during the trial which will commence on 10/7/68. Any indication of additional violations should be vigorously presented to the United States Attorney.

The Bureau should be promptly advised of all developments in this regard.

CATONSVILLE NINE TRIAL SET EGGRESSIVE CONFRONTATION EXPECTED

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 18 -- The trial of the Catonsville Nine has been set for Monday, October 7, at the Main Post Office building here. A nation-wide call has been issued by the Baltimore Defense Committee.

A large number of anti-war, anti-draft partisans are expected to converge on Baltimore to express solidarity and demand freedom for the seven men and two women who destroyed an estimated 800 draft files in Catonsville, Md., a suburb of Baltimore.

The Nine include such figures as Fr. Philip Berrigan, activist and writer; his companion-in-prison, Thomas Lewis, a Baltimore artist; Fr. Daniel Berrigan, Philip's brother and a noted poet; and Thomas and Marjorie Melville, former priest and nun expelled from Guatemala for assisting the guerrilla movement there.

The confrontation avoided in the Spock trial will be actively sought by the Nine. They will openly proclaim, without fear of the legal consequences, their intention to obstruct the U.S. war machine. From the outset, the defendants and their counsel have viewed the trial as a political event, not merely a legalistic exercise.

The trial is important for the human rights movement because it is a way to make public the illegality of the Vietnam war and the danger of American economic and military expansion abroad. The trial will also being before the public the most complicated and militant act of civil disobedience in recent years. Through this act, the Nine asserted that:

- (1) Some property has no right to exist. A bloody civil war was in fought in this country to destroy the institution of slavery, which made people property. A future must now be built which will destroy other odious types of property, such as draft files, atomic-chemical-bacteriological weapons, and slum housing.
- (2) America's ruling class has become aloof to public dissent and parliamentary process. Therefore, its misplaced power must be challenged by direct, physical action.
- (3) Institutions such as Selective Service are the means by which America's ruling class uses the people of America to fight against liberation struggles at home and abroad. There the operation of such institutions must be obstructed, crippled and finally destroyed.

Viewing draft files as the bodies of young men potentially killers or corpses in imperialist wars, the Catensville Nine chose to destroy draft files with napalm in order to identify themselves with the victims of napalm in Vietnam, Guatemala and Bolivia. And with the victims of racism and poverty at home.

Their action looks beyond Vietnam in the hope of preventing our nation's future aggressive involvement in the economic and political life of emerging nations, and in the hope of building an America which welcomes its poor and black citizens to a life of freedom and dignity.

PINE TREES, RATTLESNAKES AND REVOLUTION A WORD ABOUT OUR FLAGS

DURING THE CONVULSIVE YEARS BEFORE THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION,
THE BRITISH FLAG IN AMERICA CHANGED FROM A SYMBOL OF AFFECTION AND BENEVOLENCE TO AN EMBLEM OF HATRED AND OPPRESSION: TO CHALLENGE THE INVIOLATE POSITION OF THE BRITISH FLAG OF IMPERLALISM, THE COLONIAL REBELS DEVISED VARIOUS BANNERS TO EXPRESS THEIR ASPIRATIONS. MOST OF THESE BORE EITHER A PINE TREE OR A RATTLESNAKE.

THE PINE TREE, A SYMBOL WHICH FOUND FAVOR AMONG NEW ENGLAND REVOLUTIONARIES, BECAME KNOWN AS THE "LIBERTY TREE" AFTER THE FAMOUS TREE IN BOSTON'S HANOVER SQUARE UNDER WHICH THE SONS OF LIBERTY MET AND PLANNED THE BOSTON TEA BARTY.

THE RATTLESNAKE, A SYMBOL OF VIGILENCE ("DON'T TREAD ON ME")
WHICH WAS POPULAR IN THE SOUTHERN COLONIES, WAS FIRST USED BY THE MINUTEMEN OF CULPEPPER COUNTY, VA., A HOTBED OF DISCONTENT.

TODAY WE FIND OURSELVES IN A POSITION SIMILAR TO THAT OF OUR COLONIAL ANCESTORS. THE PRESENT AMERICAN FLAG HAS BECOME A SYMBOL OF HATRED AND OPPRESSION. BALTIMORE IS A HOTBED OF DISCOMPENT. AND OUR OWN SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF LIBERTY, THE CATONSVILLE NINE, HAVE HELD A "TEA PARTY" OUTSIDE BOARD # 33.

THEREFORE, WE CHALLENGE THE INVIOLATE POSITION OF THE PRESENT AMERICAN FLAG, AND CHOOSE FOR OURSELATE TWO OF THE FLAGS OF OUR REVOLUTIONARY AND ESTERS. IN DOING THIS, WE IDENTIFY OURSELVES-WITH AMERICA'S REVOLUTIONARY TRADITION AS WELL AS THE REVOLUTIONARY STRUGGLES OF OPPRESSED PEOPLES THE WORLD OVER.

THESE ARE FLAGS WHICH CAPTURE THE SPIRIT OF THE ELOQUENT ACTION OF THE CATONSVILLE NINE.

THESE ARE FLAGS WHICH SYMBOLIZE THE NEW AMERICA WHICH THE CATONSVILLE NINE AND COUNTLESS OTHER PATRIOTIC AMERICANS ARE BEGINNING TO BUILD.

THESE ARE FLAGS UNDER WHICH WE ARE PROUD TO GATHER.

On May 17, 1958, nine people - seven men and two wornen - "napalmed" about 800 draft records in Catonsville, Md., a suburb of Baltimore. Many of these records were those of men classified 1-A.

The record burning was an act of symbolic resistance. The Nine did not try to escape.

But the action was very real to some young men in Catonsville. It may have already saved some lives.

Being to Agney Gountry

The trial of the Catonsville Nine begins in Federal Court in Baltimore on Monday, October 7. The Baltimore Defense Committee is organizing a mass march through the city to the courthouse to demand that the Nine be freed.

In spite of Agnew (or, if you will, because of Agnew), this march will take place.

The streets belong to the people.

Confront the Shyemaliers

In addition to the FREE THE NINE mobilization march, the Pefense Committee is planning continual actions to keep attention focused on the trial. (If you liked Czicago, you'll love Palamar.)

These actions will include a rally Sunday night. (Cotober's) to hear the defendance, a suneral march to calchrate the death of Selective Chavery, visits to local firsh board members, a daily press forum, a Resistance supper and rap -> and some supprices.

The Baltimore Defense Committee is organizing HOUSING and an evening MEAL for all people who come to Baltimore to participate.

If you arrive on Sunday (as we suggest), you will be housed. If you can, we urge you to bring a sleeping bag to help us out.

The Mobilization March will assemble in Wyman Park (adjacent to Johns Hopkins University) at 9:00 A.M. October 7.

Burning draft records tied to Baltimore trial

By EUGENE HORN

Special to the Review

MILWAUKEE — A priest peace advocate who worked in Baltimore was among 14 persons are said Tuesday in Milwaukee after raiding Selective Service headquarters, saiding thousands of draft records and burning them with homemade napalm.

He is Fr. James Harney, 28, co-founder of the Baltimore Interfaith Peace Mission.

Father Harney lived at St. Gregory the Great parish and worked among the poor as a community organizer while on leave from the Boston archdiocesan seminary in 1966-67. He returned to the seminary in 1967 and was ordained last June: He is a curate in St. Jerome parish, North Weymouth, Mass.

The protectors indicated that they hoped to draw attention to the Oct. 7 trial of nine persons accused of burning draft records in Catonsville. (See story on Page A-3). The demonstrators have been charged with burglary, theft and arson which carry a total maximum penalty of up to 20 years in prison.

The group also faces the possibility of federal charges of conspiracy to violate Selective. Service icey and destruction of government properly. Both charges car v a miximum of 3 years in prison and (15,000 time upon conviction.)

The war resisters include four other priests, a Christian Brother, and a Protestant minister. Three of the lay participants are from Milwaukee.

ALL WERE ARRESTED as they watched about a dozen burlap begs of records burn at the foot of a flagpole in a grassy triangle across the street from Selective Service offices downtown. They conducted a religious service as they waited for police to arrive.

Just prior to the burning ceremony the protestors entered the building housing draft

On Monday morning, Oct. 7, the day the trial begins, there will be a "worship service for peace" at St. Ignatius. Church. At noon that day there will be a march from Wyman Park to the War Memorial Plaza.

At 8 p.m. Monday withesses brought to Baltimore by the Catonsville Nine Defense Committee to testify on behalf of the defendants will address a meeting at the St. Ignatius hall. Plans for the next day's demonstrations will also be discussed at the meeting.

On Tuesday at noon demonstrators will march from St. Ignatius Church to the Customs House bearing a coffin representing war victims.

The Customs House was the site of an incident last October in which Father Philip Berrigan, Thomas Lewis and two others poured blood over Selective Service System files.

Tuesday night 15 draft resisters who either burned or turned in their draft cards or refused induction will be honored at a dinner at St. Ignatius hall.

Wednesday's activities those in sympathy with the clude a program on "U.S. Imperialism? at St. Ignatius hall sponsored by the Association for International Development, a private group which formerly employed George Mische, one of the defendants.

> Tentative plans for Thursday call for another demonstration at the Post Office Building.

> Throughout the trial week demonstrators will be served dinner at St. Ignatius hall.

> Backing up the planning of the local Peace Action Center is a nationwide effort to focus attention on the trial.

> The Catonsville Nine Defense Committee, an interfaith group made up of such persons as Dr. Benjamin Spock, Bishop James A. Pike, Dorothy Day of The Catholic Worker, Fr. John McKenzie, S.J., of Notre Dame University and Philip Sharper of Sheed and Ward, placed a full page advertisement in The National Catholic Reporter.

> The ad asks for contributions to help "indict the war, ... to bring expert witnesses; to Baltimore to testify," and to carry on an educational campaign relating to the Ca-tonsville incident. The advertisement also asks readers to come to the trial ("It would be a joy to have you with us") and offers information on travel and accommodations.

IN AN ARTICLE in this week's issue of Commonweal Fr. Daniel Berrigan, speaking. "for the Catonsville Nine," invites readers to come to the trial and "to wear black armbands in honor of the American war dead, and white head bands in honor of the Vietnamese war dead."

Father Berrigan wrote:

"We promise all who come a good time in the company of love and courage, 'legal' proceeding that will blow your mind and open your heart, free housing . . . a defense proceeding that defends you, a prosecution that prosecutes you. What more could one ask, after Chicago, before Nov. 5? We think you know what we mean."

Another factor which will probably draw attention to the trial is the team of prominent lawyers which has volunteered to defend the nine.

The five-man team includes Fr. Robert Drinan, S.J., Dean of the Boston College Law School: William Kunstler_na ted New York civil rights lawyer; Harold Buchman of Baltimore; Fr. William Cunningham, S.J., of the law faculty of Loyola University, Chicago: and Harop Freeman, of Cornell University and the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions.

Of The Review Staff

Peace activists are expected to journey here from all over the United States to participate in demonstrations in cluding picketing of the Assumption—during the trial of nine persons charged with burning draft records in Catonsville last May.

"The Catonsville Nine," as they call themselves, will be tried in a federal courtroom in Baltimore's Central Post Office Building beginning Oct. 7.

The Peace Action Center in Baltimore, the Catonsville Nine Defense Committee in New York, and Fr. Daniel Berrigan, S.J., one of the defendants, have all mounted efforts to focus national attention on the trial and bring demonstrators to Baltimore.

The Peace Action Center, which has beauquraters at 2525 Maryland Avenue, has issued a "national call" in the form of a leaflet sent to 250 of the country's péace organizations inviting meir members to "Free the Catonsville Nine." "Come to Agnew Country," and "Confront the Slave-makers."

The Action Conter offers housing and meals for all who come to participate. A spot and for the group said he could not yet estimate how many persons were expected to accept the invitation but said that some of the same groups which demonstrated during the recent trial of Dector Spock would prepally the represented.

GREN WHITMAN a spokesman for the Peace Action Center, confirmed the following agenda of demonstrations and other events, planned for the week of the trial:

On Sunday, Oct. 6, leaflets will be distributed at churches of various denominations which have shown some sympathy for the peace movement. Names of specific churches were not available.

At 4 p.ni. that day pickets will demonstrate at the Basilica of the Assumption. Reasons for the picketing were not disclosed. A similar demonstration in front of the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen last May 19 was directed at "the silence of the Catholic community in general," according to one of the picketers.

Later that evening there will be a talk by some of the defendants in the Monument Sireet hall of St. Ignatius Church, The church hall will be the gathering place for demonstrators all wear.

MANIFESTO

The destruction of Selective Service records in Catonsville, Md., on May 17, 1968, by nine people is not a simple matter. While the action itself was indeed simple and, more to the point, clear and unequivocal, it served to call attention to the great issues of our time and suggested how to deal with these problems.

War, racism, poverty -- these are the issues which compelled nine Americans to "napalm" about 800 draft files. These are the issues which confront all of us today, while the trial of the Nine is impending and which will surely confront us after the Nine have been processed duly by the courts.

What did the Nine say about war? "The Vietnam war could end tomorrow and yet the quality of society and America's role in the world remain virtually unchanged. Thailand, Laos and the Dominican Republic have already been Vietnams. Guatemala, the Canal Zone, Bolivia and Peru could become Vietnams overnight."

Racism? "The colonies at home rise in rage and destructivness. The black people of America have concluded that after 360 years, their acceptance as human beings is long overdue."

Poverty? "A nation that found life through revolution has now become the world's number one counterrevolutionary force, not because the American people would have it that way, but because the rich choose to defend their power and wealth. While people starve for bread and lack decent housing, the rich debase themselves with comfort paid for by the misery of the poor."

The courts will now deal with this complicated assault on America and what America has become as just a simple matter. The courts will say the Nine burned draft records and that Surning draft records is against the law. The Nine will be found guilty as charged and sentenced to prison terms.

The courts will studiously ignore such circumstances as an undeclared, brutes and illegal war in Vietnam in which over 27,000 functions and unnamed thousands of Vietnamese-have been killed. The courts will ignore the cities of America which are tindercoxes of mistrust, fear and hatred. And the courts will ignore the evergrowing clamor by poor people, at home and abroad, for their rightful piece of this world.

Will the courts pender the thousands of young Americans who have become exiles? The hundreds of servicemen who have rebelled against fighting in Vietnam and are now wasting in stockades and brigs from Saigen to San Francisco? The few servicemen who have deserted and gone underground? The hundreds of young civilians who have refused induction and who have gone or are waiting to go to prison?

We know from experience the courts will not. Nor do we expect the courts to respond creatively and with concern. The law, in all its pempous majesty, will judge the Nine guilty as charged. In their thirst for order, the courts will even more irrevocably insure their own destruction by people who bunger for justice:

"Injustice is the great catalyst of revolution," sayithe Nine

SCHEDULE OF ACTIVITIES DURING CATONSVILLE 9 TRIAL WEEK

Note: All activities will emphasize that:

(1) the Catonsville Nine have our complete support for their action in the hope that such actions will become commonplace and that the draft system will be destroyed. We salute likewise the men who destroyed many records yesterday in Milwaukee, Wisc.;

(2) people have the right and the duty, if necessary, to dissent, to demonstrate, to resist and to revolt;

(3) "Agnew country" is not as placid as Mr. Agnew would like to believe. His recent campaign statements concerning "subversives," academic freedom and dissent, as well as his vendetta against H. Rap Brown and his relations with the black community in general, will be vigorously challenged;

(4) local draft board members in Baltimore, hitherto virtually anonomous, must be regarded as public officials, subject to exposure and censure " for their collusion with Selective Service.

There will be a press conference daily beginning October 7 at 5 P. M, at St. Ignatius Hall, Calvert & Monument.

CATONSVILLE NINE TRIAL ACTIONS SET

The nine persons who destroyed about 800 Selective Service records in Catonsville, Md., on May 17, 1968, are scheduled to go on trial October 7 in Baltimore.

The Baltimore Defense Committee has issued a national call to action and is organizing demonstrations and other activities during their trial around three slogans: "Free The Catonsville Nine"

"Come, To Agnew Country"

"Confront The Slavemakers"

"Free The Catonsville Nine" The Baltimore Defense Committee supports the action in Catonsville last May and calls for the immediate release of the Nine. They have committed no crimes, but have acted to prevent crimes. The United States government and its Selective Service system are the real defendants in this case, for the Nine have, by their action, indicted the perpetrators and perpetuators of war, racism and poverty. (see Manifesto)

Spiro T. Agnew, Republican candidate for Vice President. He is no friend of the black man. He is no friend of the poor man. He speaks the language of sanctimonious suburbia, with little or no knowledge of the cities. His record as Governor speaks for itself, abysmally.

Specifically:

- (1) He is Governor only because he ran against a more honest conservative.
- (2) His relations with the black community in Baltimore and Maryland have steadily and alarmingly deteriorated since he took office because of his pompous attitudes and ill-disguised racism. His name is already a "household word" in many black homes: it is used as an epithet.
- (3) He is persisting in his vendetta against H. Rap Brown in spite of the Kerner Commission's report on Cambridge. Brown is being persecuted for being outspoken. Since Agnew has already apologized twice for some of his campaign statements, he should re-examine his position on Brown.

- (4) His lack of concern or compassion for poor people makes him our own Marie Antoinette, and is exemplified by his high-handed threats to gut the Medicaid program and his remarks about the Poor Peoples' Campaign. In addition, he recently opposed efforts by farm workers to organize themselves into a union.
- (5) The implementation of the politics of "law and order" as articulated by Agnew, mean nothing less than the repression of any movement attempting to change the worst aspects of American society. We are dedicated to the building of such movements. If Agnew has had "a bellyful of dissent," we tell him now that he hasn't seen anything yet. The movements to achieve radical social, political and economic changes in the United States will not be slowed just because a political pipsqueak develops stomach trouble. We repudiate his candidacy.

"Confront The Slavemakers" We are planning special actions to expose the draft machinery in Baltimore. We know where draft board members live and work. They should expect to hear from us. We are determined to destroy their anonomity and censure them for their collusion with Selective Service and the illegal, immoral war in Vietnam.

DETAILS: AT BALTIMORE, MARYLAND

Trial by jury of all nine subjects was held in U.S. District Court, Baltimore, from October 7, 1968 to October 10, 1968, after which all were found guilty on three counts of the four-count indictment. The remaining count, Conspiracy to Commit Offenses Against the U.S., Title 18, U.S. Code, Section 371, was dropped by the Government at the opening of the trial on October 7, 1968.

At the conclusion of the trial on October 10, 1968, a motion for judgment of acquittal was filed by the defense, heard the same day and denied by the court.

Judge ROSZEL C. THOMSEN ordered a pre-sentence investigation and ordered that PHILIP FRANCIS BERRIGAN and be transferred to a federal institution from their place of present incarceration.

Judge THOMSEN tentatively set November 8, 1968 as date of sentencing.

REVEREND PHILLIP FRANCIS BERRIGAN.

"Three Catholic activists -- who last spring burned Selective Service files at a Maryland draft board -- defended their protest action Tuesday, holding that the draft's 'power threatens the peace of the world."

"The trio spoke before an audience of about 30 persons at Yale University in a meeting co-sponsored by the American Independent Movement (AIM) and the Draft Action Group/Resistance (DAG).

"Last May 17 the three, acting with nine others—including the radical Jesuit prests, the Revs. DANIEL and PHILIP BERRIGAN -- torched some 500 draft files at the Cantonsville, Md. local board with homemade napalm.

"Speaking Tuesday were Hamden resident and former Maryknoll Br. JOHN HOGAN, peace activist GEORGE MISCHE and MARY MOYLAN, a registered nurse.

"'We used napalm on these draft files, they declared, they cause napalm has burned people to death in Vietnam, Guatemala and Peru, and because it may be used on America's ghettos.'
They added:

"'We destroyed these draft records not only because they exploit our young men, but because ... their power threatens the peace of the world.""

Tom Melville and his wife Marge are a priest and a nin who had been sent to Guatemala by the Maryknoll order for the express purpose of helping the people. When it was exposed that they were supporting local guerilla movements in their struggle against oppression, they were forced to leave the country, and were subsequently expelled from the church.

Most recently, they were involved with the Contionsville 9"—Phil and Dan Berrigan, et al.—in the napalming of 600 draft files. They face severe penalties for their actions.

An article appeared on page 14 of the Thursday, September 12, 1968, issue of the Long Island Catholic captioned "A Man Among Men" and is written by Mr. WILLIAM GODDARD, stat writer. In summary of this article, Reverend DANIEL BERRIGAN is quoted in part as saying, "Killing is disorder. Life and gentleness and community and unselfishness is the only order we recognize. For the sake of that order we risk our liberty, our good name. The time is past when good men can remain silent, when obedience can segregate from public risk, when the poor can die without defense."

The morning edition of the Baltimore Sun dated October 5, 1968, carries an article on page B20 captioned "Record Burning Priest Held for Absence in Arraignment." This article makes reference to Reverend DANIEL BERRIGAN, S.J., and further identified as one of the nine Catonsville draft record burners. The article reports his arrest by Baltimore County Police Bureau late in the afternoon of October 4, 1968, after making a speech at Towson State College. The article continues by quoting Reverend BERRIGAN as saying the following while speaking before the students at Towson State College:

In response to a question from a person in the audience who asked him what he felt students can do to protest the Vietnam War, Reverend BERRIGAN answered, "Maybe this ought to be the last time people ought to burn draft cards. Maybe someone who has worked himself up to burn a draft card ought to go out and burn draft files.

"If you are going to jail, you might as well do something big."

Synopsis:

DANIEL BERRIGAN spoke on church and civil disobedience before a crowd of approximately 1,000 as reported by the "Oregon Daily Emerald", a student newspaper for the University of Oregon, Eugene, Oregon. In this speech, he urged others to participate in a revolution against death as a social method each in their own way, stating "I am delighted of Eugene's anti-draft activities last week. I only hope the intervention and participation increases." DANIEL BERRIGAN appeared at Carnegie Lecture Hall, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on 10/23/68 at which time he engaged in a poetry reading session with fellow poet NED O'GORMAN. DANIEL BERRIGAN addressed students at University of Washington, Seattle, Washington, as reported by the Seattle Post Intelligencer dated 10/21/68. DANIEL BERRIGAN, as reported by Seattle Times on 10/21/68, appeared before approximately 200 students at the Newman Club, a center for Catholic college students. As reported by the Seattle Times, BERRIGAN stated as follows in referring to the Baltimore trial: "A kind of ritual they go through for appearance sake - I was found guilty before I ever entered the courtroom." Burning of File Step to Peace, Berrigan Says

By JAQI THOMPSON Of the Emerald

Like the Biblical Daniel who was thrown into a vast furnace for his loyalty to God, Father Daniel Berrigan related his own "Trial by Fire" in a Boston court for loyalty to his antiwar convictions as over 1,000 people listened Friday.

Speaking as part of the conference on Church and Civil Disobedience, the Jesuit priest explained his actions as "opening alternatives to death as the American way of life."

Last May he and eight other persons burned all I-A and II-A draft records of Catonsville, Md. with homemade napalm.

Just last Thursday all nine were convicted of the charges against them.

Sentencing is set for Nov. 8. In a press conference Berrigan explained the appeal would probably be based on "an admission by the government, that it may be possible to object to war as illegal and immoral."

Berrigan does not expect to win the appeal, however.

"Prison is the only realistic assumption. We are interested in an appeal only to get laws in the future," he said. Modern war, he said, does not Modern war, he said, does not have to be world-wide to be total. Modern war is total because it makes total claims on the individual, he said. "Totality must be transferred to the peace scene," he said.

Berrigan stressed the need for total commitment to the idea of peace. In a press conference he added that non-violence was the only moral means of protect of protest.

Modern war, he said, does not have to be world-wide to be total because it makes total claims on the individual, he Berrigan said his actions were to show the powerless minorities—the youth, the poor, the Black—in American society that he and the other eight were willing to take equal risks of suffering, disgrace and possibly death. He urged others to participate in a revolution against "death as a social method, each in their own way.

"I am delighted," he said of Eugene's anti-draft activities last week. "I only hope the intervention and participation increases."

The Vietnam war, is war "exemplary," he said, quoting Sec. of State Dean Rusk, of death as the American way. The war is a testing ground for new weapons and weapon technology, and the civilian population of Vietnam are the guinea pigs, he said. Berrigan termed his trial as "exemplary" also. "It is a first step in the direction of humanization," he said.

Berrigan said he saw evidence of deliberate anti-personnel bombing on his unauthorized trip to Viet nam in 1967. His book, "Night Flight Over Hanoi," was released last month.

The following newspaper article was reported in the Oregon Daily Emerald, a student newspaper at the University of Oregon, Eugena Oregon, dated October 14, 1968:

Jather Daniel Berrigan

One Act Is Worth More Than 1,000 Words

Father Daniel Berrigan is a Catholic priest convicted last Thursday for burning draft files in Maryland. He will speak in the EMU ballroom Friday for the conference on the Church and Civil Disobedience.

What may one expect from the Church and the world? You see, I refuse to separate these two great realities, which you are trying to come to grips with, I say this because I am convinced, sometimes against my own cowardly will, that to be in the Church is to be in the world, and that to be out of the world is to be out of the Church, too.

And, in somewhat the same way, I am convinced that the noblest and most sensible way of being in the Church, the way opened by the flesh and heart and passionate will of Christ, is simply to be a believing man in one's world.

Let me be specific. I have heard Negro leaders men with the marks of their possion burned like a brand on their souls—declare, with the intensity of prophets, that Christ is dead.

They had witnessed His death, you see, in dead Christians. They had felt the pulse and shaken their heads. They have covered the face and motioned the morticians forward. They stepped over the Christian body, over the suburban houses and hedges and lawns, over the polite indifference, the cultivated inhumanity-into life.

It made no real difference to such leaders that life was a prison, or a kangaroo court, or a sit-in, or a burning hus. What mattered to them was that the Redeemer was dead; that living men, who must be redeemed, had resolved to redeem themselves.

In talking this way, believe me, we are really talking about the Church. And I am trying to say something like this: one act, one needful, irrevocable, dislocating, self-impoverishing, shocking act, launched by a man in favor of a real need-such an act is worth more than all the burial mounds of rhetoric, all the enfeebled good intentions, all the mumbling and fumbling and tardiness of those who are so busy cultivating their idolatries that they cannot hear the cry of the wounded man in the ditch . . . This is what I am passionately convinced of and would share with you.

AT PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

The following article was written under the captinn of the Pittsburgh Point by reporter CHARLES C. ROBB:

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1968

· VOL. II, NO. 44

20 CENTS

Dan Berrigan: poet with a cause

, by Charles C. Robb

The audience at Carnegie Lecture Hall on Wednesday night greeted the Rev. Daniel Berrigan with a long standing ovation. They were applauding him partly as a poet—and it was as a poet that he had been invited to read his works at the International Poetry Forum. They were also applauding him for his active opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Just two weeks ago in Baltimore, Father Berrigan and eight other Roman Catholic clergymen and laymen were found guilty by a federal jury of burning draft files with homemade napalm.

The "Catonsville Nine," as they have become known, were accused of entering the local draft board in Catonsville, Md., on May 17, removing 378 draft files, and burning them in an adjacent parking lot. The formal charges were willful injury to government property and willful interference with the administration of the Selective Service Act of 1967. The maximum penalty for this offense is 18 years in prison and a $22,000 fine.

Sharing the evening with Father Berrigan was fellow poet Ned O'Gorman, but it was obviously Berrigan that most in the audience had come to hear. Among the many students and young people who crowded in to pack the hall were a number of Pittsburgh's draft resisters.

Father Berrigan was introduced by Sister Mary Conta, the artist, an old friend who has designed jackets for Father Berrigan's books. Appropriately, the Lecture Hall stage had been set with several of Sister Corita's works.

Speaking in a soft, expressive voice, Father Berrigan interwove his poems with excerpts from newspaper accounts of the Catonsville incident and the trial, and even a passage from the federal indictment. It was a poetical college against the background of Father Berrigan's own narrative, of the road to Catonsville.

He began with his trip to Hanoi last winter, "during which everything began." He had gone to Hanoi to negotiate the release of three captured American airmen. He also wrote poetry, including one verse about children in a bomb shelter.

During the trial, he said, his lawyer, William Kunstler, had tried to introduce that poem into the testimony, "but the judge found that a very difficult notion."

"I tried when I was on the stand," he said, "when the question was why I went to Catonsville. I said I went to Catonsville because I was thinking of the children of the jury, hoping that none of them would die by napalming."

"The judge said that was irrelevant. Yes, in a war like this children are irrelevant. It is irrelevant that children die. That's why I chose to go to Catonsville."

Father Berrigan read a poeth "To Philip," his brother, also a priest, who, in addition to being one of the Catonsville Nine, is also serving a six-year sentence for pouring blood on draft files in Baltimore last year.

Then there were poems about federal marshals, with their "riddled revolver eyes," the judge, and the unfortunate Negro prosecutor—"He was Step and Fetching for the Great Society."

Throughout his readings Father Berrigan manifested the serene conviction that appears to characterize those who have taken the greatest risks in opposing the war. At an informal press conference on Wednesday afternoon,

Father Berrigan willingly embraced the prospect of a long period in jail.

He said that the decision to destroy draft records was one that came after four years of legal protest had proven ineffective against the war. And the effect has been a

"I notice a great change in the climate since we did it," he said. "The symbolism is seeping down. People seem to be more receptive. I had a tougher time doing much less a year ago."

He was asked whether a long term in prison would not deprive him of the chance to work effectively in the

"I didn't see the fact of going to jail as the removal from the possibility of action," he replied. "Visiting Phil the last four months, I have been seeing what he was able to do with young people who needed an older person."

He pointed out that there are many draft resisters in prison now and that "more and more of our best young would be a rich and exciting thing."

In ministering to men in prison, he said, a clergyman should not operate solely as "mercenaries for hire, who perform a service and leave. There is a deeper, Biblical relationship with these men."

O'Gorman, who read his works following Father Berrigan, appeared to be the antithesis of the poet as activist. But O'Gorman, it appeared, is waging the same fight in a different manner.

As the director of the Addie Mae Collins Library in a Harlem storefront, O'Gorman is ministering in his own way to children whose bomb shelter is not in Hanoi but on 127th Street.

O'Gorman was introduced by William Clancy, a former editor of Commonweal who is now with the Pittsburgh Oratory, the Catholic campus ministry. Clancy, who said he met O'Gorman 14 years ago in the White Horse Tayern in Greenwich Village, told the audience that O'Gorman recently turned down an offer to become the poet in residence at the City College of New York. O'Gorman's reason, Clancy said, was that the position would require an oath of allegiance "to the United States, the State of New York, and the constitutions thereof."

"Mister O'Gorman has nothing against these constitutions," Clancy went on, "but he's a poet, and he knows these things are signs. He's serving black children, and he knows these are signs of chaos and deprivation."

O'Gorman began by saying that "It's a great joy to be here tonight with Daniel and with Sister Corita," whom he described as "two teachers."

His poems were not topical at all, and his last reading, though it was entitled "War," was more poetry than protest. But throughout his readings, he spoke often of his admiration and awe at Father Berrigan's calmness before the ordeal facing him. O'Gorman prefaced his reading of "War" with a comment drawn from Dorothy Day: "Jail's okay when you can meditate on it in some historical fashion; but it's hell when you've got to get into it."

The following newspaper article was printed in the Pittsburgh Press on October 23, 1968, and reported by MAGGIE PATTERSON under the caption of "Poet-Priest Wins Forum Audience."

"It was a night of anti-establishment editorializing in poetry at Carnegie Lecture Hall last night by Father DANIEL BERRIGAN, NED O'GORMAN and the audience."

"The session was the second in the International Poetry Forum series."

"The audience? It breathed a spirit of its own while the stage still waited empty.

"Poets Praised

"It would be fun to be here even if there weren't two great poets," commented Sister CBRITA, a Los Angeles artist, who introduced Father BERRIGAN.

"The poet-priest awaits sentence on Nov. 8 for conviction of burning draft records in suburban Baltimore.

"Injecting incidents, jokes, and opinions around his poetry, Father BERRIGAN concentrated the talk on his visit to Hanoi, his "crime" trial, and poems he wrote during these experiences.

"The audience mostly, though not entirely white was dressed for the classroom. It was heavily peppered with black habits of the religious."

"Recalling how he sat relaxed with his brother, PHILIP, and eight others after burning the draft files, Father BERRIGAN said a Catholic policeman approached them.

"Poet Recognized

"He recognized PHILIP from a previous arrest.

"I'm going to change my religion," the priest quoted the policeman.

"That's just what we were after," said the poet. "They've been Catholic. Now they are thinking of Christianity."

"Resounding laughter and applause expressed the listeners' nod of approval for the priest's protest.

"Here's a little bit about the judge. Maybe it's uncharitable, but I'll tear it up later," Father BERRIGAN read his next poem.

"It was a poem of youth and of the alienated.

"Father BERRIGAN, 47, finds a "great creative force in the alienated," he said in an afternoon interview.

"He also commented on the increasing amount of sympathy he has received.

"Notices Change

"I notice a great deal of change. Perhaps the symbolism (of protest action) is seeping down," he said.

"In his gentle, almost-delicate voice, he brought tears to many eyes as he read a poem about holding a North Vietnamese child during the bombing of Hanoi by American planes.

"In an interview NED O'GORMAN spoke of the independent "store-front center" he operates in Harlem.

"We want to stay clear of anything from the Government, state or Catholic Church," said the poet, himself a Catholic.

"He also spoke of alienation.

"It is hard to be a citizen and a poet."

"You go where there is revolution, where you are moved, and wat to be told what to do," he said.

"Last evening, his resonant voice rang out, not with protest, but metaphysics and mysticism. But he dedicated several readings to his friend, DANIEL BERRIGAN, and the "great ordeal he faces."

"Pittsburgh poetry used to be followed by a question mark, according to DR. SAMUEL HAZO, director of the International Poetry Forum.

"But Pittsburgh and the metered art melted together last night for the capacity crowd of 650. The hall could have been filled twice with requests that came in after the sellout, said DR. HAZO."

'Burn Draft Cards, Not People,' Jesuit Urges

BY EARL HANSEN

Religion Editor

"Maybe some day the Air Force could just drop these cheeseburgers," Father Daniel Berrigan, S.J., one of the convicted "Catonsville Nine" jested yesterday after a Fort Lewis visit to stockaded pacifists. His burger wrapper had bomb symbols on it.

A base poster read:
"Come to the Army Arts and Crafts Fair." To which the lean Jesuit poet, dressed in a black turtleneck, reacted, "what a tragic collage one could make from Army leftovers."

Then sighting a junkyard from the freeway, he added, "maybe Lady Bird should try to interest her husband in saving the landscape of Vietnam."

Father Berrigan is one of those found guilty of burning records of the draft board in Catonville, Md., earlier this month.

He started yesterday's round of activities by celebrating Mass at a private residence in Seattle.

The Mass, in the home of a local Catholic educator, was celebrated around a dining room table amidst pictures of a Vietnamese child, with two Lutheran ministers and a Buddhist a mong the participants breaking bread and drinking from one chalice.

The priest's eucharist meditation, including a Biblical passage where Jesus said to remember Him,

--P-! Pholo

FATHER BERRIGAN, S.J.

He said "war is wrong"

reminded participants that we can hardly remember Him until we remember one another.

Father Berrigan, a soft spoken scholar—whose diary "Nightflight to Hanoi," published by McMillan, was just released this week—talked candidly of his week in Laos, his eight days in Hanoi, and his recent months on the faculty of Cornell University.

'RELIGIOUS'

"As I explained to the Baltimore jury before the judge stopped me with his gavel, I have come to believe it is much more religious to burn licenses for killing than burn people. You should have seen what a match to a bit of napalm spread on those draftboard records did. Fire extinguishers did nothing until it was all ashes."

Addressing students at the University of Washington's Newman Center, Father Dan, as he's known at Cornell, said he wants to believe there is still a way of getting into tomorrow without stepping over bodies and more bodies.

He said that even though the ensuing election isn't going to help us, the Wallaces and the General Hersheys are letting us see ourselves where we are. "They're valuable to us in some sort of weird way."

"I met with a large group yesterday at the University of Oregon," Father Berrigan said, "and I told them it was like going across the street, they were so like the live group we have at Cornell.

"But we cannot delude ourselves into thinking we're changing all that much, because we're basically meeting our own kinds of people at these sessions and meetings. And it is the Wallace followers, many of them young, who remind us of where we are and how far we have to go.

'RACISTS'

"Yet Nixon and Hum- quarterly.

phrey seem racists in another way," the Jesuit continued, "since the only way they'll come to give up the war is when it becomes politically expedient." He said he sees a four-year "political desert" ahead, but then hope in the new breed of youth after that.

"It's almost like a genetic leap," he said in describing this minority of youth in which he sees tomorrow's hope. "It's hard to conceive of them being sons of their fathers."

Citing an illustration from the Baltimore trial days when a coffin was sent to the draft board and the symbolism in the board having to sign a receipt he said there's hope when youth begin putting a personal price tag on peace and saying no to war, with courage to keep saying no.

FRIENDS

F at her Berrigan spoke last night at the University Friends Meeting before returning to Cornell to continue his student work, which includes seminar classes in the study of violence and non-violence.

Local supporters of Father Berrigan's work and views include professors. Thomas Hungericad and John Boler of the University of Washington and Professors Gerard Rutan and John Toutonghi of Scattle University and Dr. Richard Carbray, associate editor of Continuum, a Catholic oparterly.

The following article appeared in the Seattle Times on October 21, 1968:

Convicted Draft Foe Visits Seattle, Says Stiff Sentence Likely

The Rev. Daniel Berrigan, S. J., who was one of the "Catonsville Nine" convicted of destroying draft records this month, said here yesterday, "I expect to be spending a little time in jail soon."

About 200 students at the Newman Club, a center for Catholic college students, and a smaller group at the University Friends Center heard Father Berrigan describe his recent trial and conviction.

Father Berrigan, long a controversial figure, joined a group of draft protesters in Catonsville, Md., in pouring homemade napalm on draft records.

The prist's sentencing is scheduled November 8.

Father Berrigan said his trial was "a kind of a ritual

"The position of the government after the Spock case and the trial of my brother (the Rev. Phillip Berrigan, S.J., convicted of pouring duck's blood on draft records as been strengthened to the point where they feel they can take severe measures to stop this sort of protest," he said.

A review of all issues of the University of Washington Daily for the week of October 21 - October 25, 1968, reflect no mention of the speech by Rev. BERRIGAN.

Investigation conducted on November 4, 1968, disclosed that subject MARY MOYLAN appeared as a guest speaker before a rally held by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) at the Towson State College, Towson, Maryland.

MOYIAN in a brief speech at this rally told the 200 to 300 students in attendance "that the demonstrators in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention were beautiful."

During her brief talk, MOYIAN did not refer to her participation in the burning of Selective Service records at Catonsville, Maryland, in May of 1968, nor did she make any comments regarding the tral or the forthcoming sentencing of herself and eight other defendants scheduled for November 8, 1968.

The following newspaper article was reported on page 3C of the Baltimore News American dated November 5, 1968:

20 CENTS

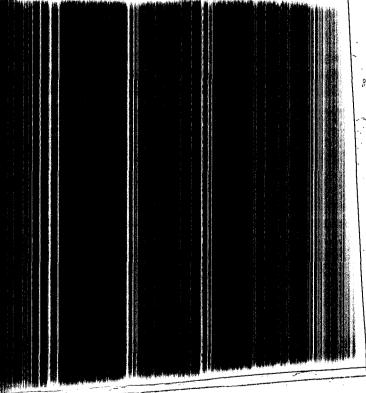

Dan Berrigan: poet with a cause

by Charles C. Robb

The audience at Carnegie Lecture Hall on Wednesday night greeted the Rev. Daniel Berrigan with a long standing ovation. They were applauding him partly as a poet—and it was as a poet that he had been invited to read his works at the International Poetry Forum. They were also applauding him for his active opposition to the war in Vietnam.

Just two weeks ago in Baltimore, Father Berrigan and eight other Roman Catholic clergymen and laymen were found guilty by a federal jury of burning draft files with homemade napalm.

The "Catonsville Nine," as they have become known, were accused of entering the local draft board in Catonsville, Md., on May 17, removing 378 draft files, and burning them in an adjacent parking lot. The formal charges were willful injury to government property and willful interference with the administration of the Selective Service Act of 1967. The maximum penalty for this offense is 18 years in prison and a $22,000 fine.

Sharing the evening with Father Berrigan was fellow poet Ned O'Gorman, but it was obviously Berrigan that most in the audience had come to hear. Among the many students and young people who crowded in to pack the hall were a number of Pittsburgh's draft resisters.

Father Berrigan was introduced by Sister Mary Corita, the artist, an old friend who has designed jackets for Father Berrigan's books. Appropriately, the Lecture Hall stage had been set with several of Sister Corita's works.

Speaking in a soft, expressive voice, Father Berrigan interwove his poems with excerpts from newspaper accounts of the Catonsville incident and the trial, and even a passage from the federal indictment. It was a poetical college against the background of Father Berrigan's own narrative, of the road to Catonsville.

He began with his trip to Hanoi last winter, "during which everything began." He had gone to Hanoi to negotiate the release of three captured American airmen. He also wrote poetry, including one verse about children in a bomb shelter.

During the trial, he said, his lawyer, William Kunstler, had tried to introduce that poem into the testimony, "but the judge found that a very difficult notion."

"I tried when I was on the stand," he said, "when the question was why I went to Catonsville. I said I went to Catonsville because I was thinking of the children of the jury, hoping that none of them would die by napalming."

"The judge said that was irrelevant. Yes, in a war like this children are irrelevant. It is irrelevant that children die. That's why I chose to go to Catonsville."

Father Berrigan read a poerh "To Philip," his brother, also a priest, who, in addition to being one of the Catonsville Nine, is also serving a six-year sentence for pouring blood on draft files in Baltimore last year.

Then there were poems about federal marshals, with their "riddled revolver eyes," the judge, and the unfortunate Negro prosecutor—"He was Step and Fetching for the Great Society."

Throughout his readings Father Berrigan manifested the service conviction that appears to characterize those who have taken the greatest risks in opposing the war. At an informal press conference on Wednesday afternoon, concluded on page 2

Father Berrigan willingly embraced the prospect of a long period in jail.

He said that the decision to destroy draft records was one that came after four years of legal protest had proven ineffective against the war. And the effect has been a positive one, he said.

"I notice a great change in the climate since we did it," he said. "The symbolism is seeping down. People seem to be more receptive. I had a tougher time doing much less a year ago."

He was asked whether a long term in prison would not deprive him of the chance to work effectively in the future.

"I didn't see the fact of going to jail as the removal from the possibility of action," he replied. "Visiting Phil the last four months, I have been seeing what he was able to do with young people who needed an older person."

He pointed out that there are many draft resisters in prison now and that "more and more of our best young people are going to be in that position. To be with them would be a rich and exciting thing."

In ministering to men in prison, he said, a clergyman

should not operate solely as "mercenaries for hire, who perform a service and leave. There is a deeper, Biblical relationship with these men."

O'Gorman, who read his works following Father Berrigan, appeared to be the antithesis of the poet as activist. But O'Gorman, it appeared, is waging the same fight in a different manner.

As the director of the Addie Mae Collins Library in a Harlem storefront, O'Gorman is ministering in his own way to children whose bomb shelter is not in Hanoi but on 127th Street.

O'Gorman was introduced by William Clancy, a former editor of Commonweal who is now with the Pittsburgh Oratory, the Catholic campus ministry. Clancy, who said he met O'Gorman 14 years ago in the White Horse Tavern in Greenwich Village, told the audience that O'Gorman recently turned down an offer to become the poet in residence at the City College of New York. O'Gorman's reason, Clancy said, was that the position would require an oath of allegiance "to the United States, the State of New York, and the constitutions thereof."

"Mister O'Gorman has nothing against these constitutions," Clancy went on, "but he's a poet, and he knows these things are signs. He's serving black children, and he knows these are signs of chaos and deprivation."

O'Gorman began by saying that "It's a great joy to be here tonight with Daniel and with Sister Corita," whom he described as "two teachers."

His poems were not topical at all, and his last reading, though it was entitled "War," was more poetry than protest. But throughout his readings, he spoke often of his admiration and awe at Father Berrigan's calmness before the ordeal facing him. O'Gorman prefaced his reading of "War" with a comment drawn from Dorothy Day: "Jail's okay when you can meditate on it in some historical fashion, but it's hell when you've got to get into it."

Berrigan and O'Gorman Read———at International Poetry Forum

The International Poetry Forum will present Daniel Berrigan and Ned O'Gorman in a reading of their poetry on Wednesday, October 23, 1968, at 8:30 P.M. in the Carnegie Lecture Hall. Oakland.

They protest through poetry and audience agrees.

Poet-Priest Wins Forum Audience

By MAGGIE PATTERSON

It was a night of anti-establishment editorializing in poetry at Carnegie Lecture Hall last night by Father Daniel Berrigan, Ned O'Gorman and the audience.

The session was the second in the International Poetry Forum series.

The audience? It breathed a spirit of its own while the stage still waited empty.

Poets Praised

"It would be fun to be here even if there weren't two great poets," commented Sister Corita, a Los Angeles artist, who introduced Father Berrigan.

The poet-priest awaits sentence on Nov. 8 for conviction of burning draft records in suburban Baltimore.

Injecting incidents, jokes, and opinions around his restry, Father Berrigan concentrated the talk on his visit to Hanoi, his "crime" trial, and poems he wrote during these experiences.

The audience mostly, though not entirely white was dressed for the classroom. It was heavily peppered with black habits of the religious.

Recalling how he sat relaxed with his brother, Philip, and eight others after burning the draft files, Father Berrigan said a Catholic policeman approached them.

Poet Recognized

He recognized Philip from a previous arrest.

"I'm going to change my religion," the priest quoted the policeman.

"That's just what we were after," said the poet. "They've been Catholic. Now they are thinking of Christianity."

Resounding laughter and applause expressed the listeners' nod of approval for the priest's protest.

"Here's a little bit about the judge. Maybe it's uncharitable, but I'll tear it up later," Father Berrigan read his next poem.

It was a poem of youth and of the alienated.

Father Berrigan, 47, finds a "great creative force in the alienated," he said in an afternoon interview.

He also commented on the increasing amount of sympathy he has received.

Notices Change

"I notice a great deal of change. Perhaps the symbolism (of protest action) is seeping down," he said.

In his gentle, almost-delicate voice, he brought tears to many eyes as he read a poem about holding a North Vietnamese chiri during the bombing of Hanol by American planes.

In an interview Ned O'Gorman spoke of the independent "store-front center" he operates in Harlem.

"We want to stay clear of anything from the Government, state or Catholic Church," said the poet, himself a Catholic.

He also spoke of alienation.
"It is hard to be a citizen and a poet.

"You go where there is revolution, where you are moved, and wait to be told what to do," he said.

"Last evening, his resonant voice rang out, not with protest, but metaphysics and mysticism. But he dedicated several readings to his friend, Daniel Berrigan, and the "great ordeal he faces."

Pittsburgh poetry used to be followed by a question mark, according to Dr. Samuel Hazo, director of the International Poetry Forum.

But Pittsburgh and the metered art melted together last night for the capacity crowd of 650. The hall could have been filled twice with requests that came in after the sellout, said Dr. Hazo.

Poetry Forum Hosts Berrigan

Father Daniel Berrigan and Ned O'Gorman will read their works at the next International Poetry Forum at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in Carnegie Lecture Hall in Oakland.

A former chaplain at Cornell University, Father Berrigan is free on bond after his conviction for burning draft board records in Baltimore. He is the author of "Time Without Number" and "Night Flight to Hanoi."

Mr. O'Gorman, winner of a Guggenheim Fellowship for poetry, teaches at Manhattan College. He wrote "Night of the Hammer," which won the Lamont Poetry selection in 1958.

On November 8, 1968, subjects appeared before the Honorable ROSZEL C. THOMSEN, United States District Court for the District of Maryland, Baltimore, Maryland. After four hours of testimony, Judge THOMSEN imposed the following sentences under Title 18, United States Code, Sections 1361 and 2 (Count 2 of the indictment); Sections 2071 and 2 (Count 3 of the indictment); 50 Appendix, United States Code, Section 462(a), Title 18, United States Code, Section 2 (Count 4 of the indictment). Count 1 of the indictment (conspiracy to commit the above offenses) was dismissed by the government during the trial of the subjects in October, 1968:

Subject PHILIP BERRIGAN was sentenced to three years and six months on Count 2 and 4 of the indictment; three years on Count 3 of the indictment. Sentence to begin May 17, 1968, and to run concurrent with the above counts and to be concurrent with the sentence he is now serving;

Subject sentenced to three years and six months on Counts 2 and 4 of the indictment; three years on Count 3 of the indictment. Sentence to begin May 17, 1968, and to run concurrent with the above counts and concurrent with the sentence he is now serving.

Holmes Gandv b7C SUBJECT: REVEREND PHILIP FRANCIS BERRIGAN, ET AL. SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT, 1948 This matter involves the clergymen and their associates who have been convicted of two violations of causing damage to Selective Service records. pouring blood on draft records at the Customs House, Baltimore, Maryland, 10/27/67, they set fire to records of the local board at Catonsville, Maryland, on 5/18/68. ernetrators, Rev. Philip Francis Berrigan, upon conviction appeared for sentencing and and told the United States District Judge that if freed on bond they would not refrain from antidraft activity. Considering this attitude, the judge moved for immediate incarceration and they began serving sentences at the Lewisburg Federal Correction Institution. The refusal of bail was appealed up to the Supreme Court and upheld. On 12/12/68, Berrigan and appeared at a b7C hearing at a United States District Court, Baltimore. Berrigan stated that if released on ball he would not advise anyone to evade the draft, but he would continue to speak out regarding his own beliefs. promised he would not do anything in violation of the law if granted bail On the strength of these statements, Berrigan and were released on $2,500 bail each on both cases against them which are pending appeal.
